Events

Screening of « Orgasmic Birth » by Debra Pascali Bonaro, french premiere
A documentary that examines the intimate nature of birth and the powerful role it plays in women's lives when they are permitted to experience it fully.

Représentation de la pièce de théâtre « Birth the play », by Karen Brody
8 women express their emotions as they tell their birth stories in a moving and sometimes comical way.

Red tents

Red tents are cosy spaces in which groups of women share the intimate side of their birth stories. The red tent is taken from ancient traditions in which women had a special place dedicated to them where they shared and celebrated the milestones of their sexual lives: puberty, pregnancy, birth...

Introduction

Around the world, passing on experience from woman to woman, from man to man, never ceased. Families first draw and grow from their own intimate resources and then reach for outside help. They also call upon support offered by those close by, by society and their knowledge of it. The social cohesion, local and wider networking, support from friends, here are the pillars to build one's identity and family.

Today many parents shout their incomprehension at a system which strips them from their humanity, is deaf to their questions, proposes arbitrary answers and denies their individual experience. Mothers are shouting, "mother to mother", that the reality of their experience of motherhood is not what they expected it to be.

How to express these emotions, where and who with can man and women talk about themselves? How can we listen better to the future parents' particular needs and stories, and to the stories that preceded them? For the doctors and midwives who wish to listen to parents needs and who can't practice the midwifery model they believe in, how could this be done?

This year we propose 3 days of sharing centered around women's words. At the heart of it the project: "De Mères A-mères" "Motherwhelmed" - a collection of texts which will be read out, slammed by artists and "The Red Tents"- women gathering to tell their childbirth stories in an intimate atmosphere.

For the first time in France, the film "Orgasmic Birth" by Debra Pascali Bonaro will be showed and the play "Birth" by Karen Brody will be performed again.

With, around these major events, an exhibition of paintings, pictures and photographs, conferences and workshops lead by French and International speakers. Special support will be given to midwives working towards the creation of birth centers in France.

Listening to and sharing experiences, working towards the creation of a network where everyone has a place, respecting each other, to support together parents own choices.

De MÃres A-mÃres - Motherwhelmed

A blog "De MÃres A-mÃres" is now opened to collect your texts, your words, your shouts. They will also be published in a Doulas de France collection of texts. Selected texts will be slammed or read out by invited artists, throughout the event.

These texts will express women emotions and feelings. They might echo in you, surprise you, or possibly shock you. These words will reflect individual opinion and not always ours. We choose to free these words by giving everyone the opportunity to express them at last.

Thanks for your contribution!

Of bitter mother, let me tell you the pain

From mother to mother, let me tell how tough it is

Of bitter mothers, let me tell you the words

From mother to mother, let me tell you loudly

Because you, bitter mother, you feel... what they do not know

A baby, it takes 9 months to make it and 9 months to undo it

Well, for me, it's more or less what happened and, since last Friday, I feel becoming a woman again and not only a mother, although the tracks of my pregnancies went on the rampage with their extra-kilos, but that's another subject ! Indeed, after this blessed period of expectation when one feels moving this still unknown baby ; when the "I" is somewhat vague, as we are two without being "we" already. After this initiatory rite when the huge pain, which comes to every contraction, that we cannot repel, that others cannot share with us... And then later, that water which escapes, a few more minutes and the baby is there, I've no pain anymore, it's over, my baby is there. And then comes another period when the body naps, when hormones dominate, when breastfeeding is omnipresent. There is no rythme, baby's rythme is anarchy, no moons, interrupted sleep, little naps gathered during the day. And then, one day, the baby begins to eat, to eat something that's not coming from us, and the worst, he seems to appreciate it ! A biscuit, a fruit, a puree. And sometimes crumbs, because this baby is on all fours. As a new spring, as a nature which wakes up, a stream which passes by. A stream which would have been able to give life again, but no, it will be for next time, or for the time after. Still a little more time. A baby, even a 9 months baby, is still small. Still a little time for him. To carry him, to cherish him, to breastfeed him, to see him waking up like a flower which opens and shows us its petals, one by one, each one being more beautiful than the previous one. Is this time to be regretted, this moment out of time when one's everything to it's baby? No, I don't think so, for me, it took me 9 months, that was more than last time, but I took it as a gift, as a gilded bracket, for me and my baby. Since Friday, the small cup is back, it was welcome, it's time had come.
